

Start of a new term

Good afternoon, dear teachers, and students,

As we embark on a new term, let us take a moment to pause and reflect on our performance, recognizing both our successes and areas for improvement. This self-reflection is vital for long-term personal growth. Remember, the results of one assessment do not define us but rather serve as stepping-stones for progress.

Additionally, I wanted to remind you that we have our photo-taking day scheduled for this coming Monday. Capturing class and form photos is important as it allows us to preserve our collective memories. These photos serve as a visual representation of our growth and transformations throughout the academic year, commemorating friendships and symbolizing the challenges we have overcome together. They not only preserve our shared experiences but also foster a sense of unity and belonging.

So, when the opportunity arises, make sure to wholeheartedly participate. These class and form photos will hold a special place in our hearts, especially as we grow older.

As we prepare the Speech Day booklet, I suggest including our class photographs, as they will capture and preserve our achievements, reminding us of the challenges we have overcome and the memories we have made along the way. Let us embrace the power of photography to keep our collective memories alive.

Thank you!
